

New Mexico State University, College of Agricultural, Consumer & Environmental Sciences, Department of Agricultural and Extension Education announces the opening of Department Head. The department head is responsible for implementing the department's vision, and all aspects of administration including fiscal and personnel management, developing and maintaining departmental facilities, faculty and program evaluations, and administering departmental programs. The department head is expected to exercise foresight and effective leadership while fostering positive working relationships among faculty, staff, and students within and between academic and extension departments and our clientele. Some teaching within the department will be required. Candidates must have attained the rank of Professor or equivalent, or Associate Professor eligible for promotion to Professor within the department, with a doctorate in Agricultural and Extension Education, Agricultural Communications, Agricultural Leadership, or another related field. More information on New Mexico State University, the College of Agricultural, Consumer and Environmental Sciences, and the Department of Agricultural and Extension Education can be found at <http://www.nmsuedu/>, <http://aces.nmsu.edu>, and <http://www.aces.nmsu.edu/academics/axed/>.

For complete job description, qualifications, and application process visit: <https://jobs.nmsu.edu> posting #1900439F. Application deadline is 6/30/19.

NMSU is an Equal Employment Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer.