Dear _____:

The 2009 Southern Region Conference of the American Association for Agricultural Education is slated for January 31st – February 3rd, 2009. This year, the Department of Agricultural Leadership, Education, and Communication at the University of Georgia is the conference host. The 2009 conference will take place at the Westin Peachtree Plaza in downtown Atlanta, just steps from CNN, the Georgia Aquarium, Georgia World Congress Center, and the Georgia Dome.

Our vision for this program is to create a memorable conference filled with exciting sessions, excellent speakers, and innovative ideas from the Southern Region Land-Grant Universities. We are expecting over 350 attendees from Kentucky, Tennessee, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Oklahoma, Texas, Arkansas, and Louisiana.

The American Association for Agricultural Education is dedicated to studying, applying, and promoting the teaching and learning processes in agriculture. Our conference is designed to provide opportunities to communicate the results of research and other scholarly activities and allow collaboration within and outside of agricultural education.

We would sincerely appreciate your financial assistance, and we are offering several levels of sponsorship to best suit your level of giving. The enclosed sponsorship form lists the different sponsorship levels so that you may choose the level most suitable to your needs and budget.

If you would like to discuss the conference in more detail, please give me a call or complete and return the enclosed form via fax or mail. We hope to see you in Atlanta and thank you for your support!

Sincerely,

Dr. Dennis W. Duncan
UGA Associate Professor and Conference Chairman
